FLASH UPDATE 27 MARCH 2024

edition 2024/06

Dear <<First Name>> <<Last Name>>,

ASML, the most highly valued European tech company, with its headquarters in Veldhoven the Netherlands and Beethoven, the German composer and pianist.

It has been a popular subject in the media the past weeks.

Like many others ASML shared its worries about our investment climate.

Of course this is also related to Schiphol and the airline industry. We need a maximum amount of connections to the world, as our country is the home base of many multi-nationals but as well of small and medium sized enterprises that are dependent on all those destinations currently served from Schiphol. Let's take an example of Singapore, a country in many aspects so comparable to ours. It stated recently it needs to find a good balance between sustainability measures for the aviation industry and its competitive position. It's exactly this balance that is so important. For Schiphol, for ASML and for many others, including all those that want to enjoy a well-deserved holiday.

Wishing you a Happy Easter weekend,

Take care,

Marnix H Fruitema
Chairman

Court in The Hague rules in RBV vs. Dutch State case

On March 20, the Judge of the Court in The Hague ruled in a case requested by the 'Recht op Bescherming tegen Vliegtuighinder' (RBV) versus the Dutch State, that the State has not done enough to protect inhabitants of the areas around Schiphol Airport against noise hindrance caused by aviation. Although the Judge did not condemn the Dutch State to reduce the actual number of flight movements, the Court did order the Dutch State to pass a new Airport Traffic Decree (LVB) to find a legal basis for the total number of flight movements to be operated from and to Schiphol Airport. The time allowed to get new legislation in place is set at 12 months from the date of the verdict.
